NEW LOCAL ICE PLANT

VALLEY SUPPLY COMPANY ERECTING ELABORATE, MODERN FACTORY OF 20-TON CAPACITY

Glendale will shortly have an ice factory of its own. This new local enterprise is being erected by the Valley Supply company on the Coker property at 126 E. Third street. When finished, which will be by the beginning of the year, the new plant will have a capacity of twenty tons. This local industry is deserving of the full support of all residents of the city and should be preferred to outside companies if it can furnish ice at similar rates. The Valley Supply Company's activity and enterprise is worthy of encouragement.

Most of the machinery for the new plant has arrived. A couple of cars which came in Tuesday brought the 75-horse-power boiler and the smoke shaft as well as 210 ice molds, compressors and various other parts of the machinery necessary for the plant.

When completed the new plant will be one of the best-finished and most elaborate ice factories in Southern California. Mr. Coker has exceeded even the demands of rigorous civic specifications. The base on which the ice room stands, for instance, is not only 8 feet thick, but is finished in such a manner as to insure absolute impenetrability. It has a storage capacity of 200 tons. The floor base is composed of layers of concrete mixed in the proportions of 1 to 4, and asphaltum. The lathing on the walls is of steel. The walls of the ice house are covered with silo-cel, a new non-conducting substance that gives a fine finish to the outside. Special doors constructed so as to be absolutely non-conductors shut off the icehouse from all possibility of lowering of temperature. The roof is equally well constructed.

Mr. L. G. Lutz, constructing engineer of the Frick Company, of Waynesboro, Pa., by which firm the outfit has been supplied, is superintending the construction of the plant, which is being rushed as fast as possible. Mr. Lutz has had long experience in the erection of such plants. "This is as substantial and complete a plant," he said, "as I have ever superintended. It will be a credit to the city."

Mr. A. Harter, who is Mr. Coker's local engineer, emphasized Mr. Lutz's opinion. He said: "It is a great pleasure to me to work on this plant. Mr. Coker is anxious to have everything best in quality and in workmanship. No expense has been spared and when completed this plant will have cost between $25,000 and $30,000. You see that big tank? That is for boiling the water. Glendale water is pure mountain water; but here we take no chances on that. The water is first boiled, then reboiled, distilled and filtered, then conveyed to the molds and set in that immense reservoir of brine, which is kept in constant agitation by that propeller-like piece of machinery. Those double pipes cool the ammonia, which robs the water of its heat and turns it into ice. The ice in its mold enters by that small passageway into the ice house and is stored there in a temperature that insures that there shall be no waste."

"When this plant is completed," said Mr. Coker, "Glendale will have a new industry and one that is going to be a success. Already we have secured most of our old customers and have the assurance of many new ones. This plant will mean a great deal to the city, which is always loyal to local enterprise."

HONOR FALLS TO FORMER GLENDALE GIRL

Miss Roberta Rand, a former Glendale girl has added a new laurel to her collection and undoubtedly her many friends in this city will be delighted to learn of the honor bestowed upon this general favorite.

At the International Exposition held in San Francisco, two Gold Medals were awarded Miss Rand. Those who knew this industrious girl more intimately were well aware of her ability as a needlewoman and her knowledge of the art is what captured the reward.

Three silk quilts, a crocheted lace bed spread and several pieces of embroidery were packed and sent to be exhibited among the thousands of other articles.. As Miss Rand expressed it; "Wonder of wonders," when she received word of her success.

The first medal was awarded for the best display of quilts and the second was won on the lace spread.

For the past year and a half Merced, California, has been the home of Miss Rand and her parents, but Glendale has always claimed her as its own.

AWAY FROM THE SNOW

CHARLES KUBESCH OF ST. PAUL, MINNESOTA, THINKS GLENDALE A PARADISE

"It would be difficult to express all that I think of the beauties of Glendale and specially of the fine weather we are getting at this season," said Mr. Charles Kubesch, of St. Paul, Minn. "It is amazing to hear people grumbling because the temperature drops a little at night. If those people were back in the Middle West or on the Atlantic coast at this moment they would be purchasing tickets for California by the first train.

"Naturally I think Glendale a charming place. For some years I have made it my home during the winter months. Where else in the United States on the twenty-first day of December would you find such a day as Monday, with the sun shining brightly and the temperature up to nearly 70. As I say, if it does fall at night, one can be prepared for it. Then just think of the blizzard that is raging over the central States at the present moment. You can almost hear that wind howling across the prairies, and see the streets knee-deep in snow.

"There was snow all along the route tiill we came to California. I can tell you to come into these beautiful green valleys and see the flowers blooming and feel the balmy air is a great treat. Of course in the summer and autumn months Minnesota is a most beautiful spot. It would be difficult to find a more picturesque State. Its 10,000 lakes sleeping under the northern sky; the wild laughter of its loons; the splash of the muskalonge or lake trout, the wild dash of the red deer through the underbrush—all stir the blood and set the pulse bounding. They are the charm of such States as Minnesota or Wisconsin. Believe me, however, when the thermometer is down to 30 or 40 below and the snow is breast high in the woods it is very pleasurable to sit on a comfortable veranda in Glendale and watch the sun shining and hear the birds sing.

"We have been staying at the Edward Hotel on Fifth street and are enjoying our first days in this beautiful city which we love so well. When Spring returns we will go back to the land of the lakes. I love Minnesota, too, but I prefer to wait until the worst of the winter is over.

"For years I have labored in St. Paul as a caterer. The business flourishes in that land of good fellowship. The Scandinavian people of whom there are quite a few, and the good-living German population are all fond of good cheer. St. Paul is an ideal town for that business. I have found it a good business and made money at it. Now I have leisure to go about and enjoy myself with my family.

"Each year I come into Glendale I find it a little farther ahead. It is a fine, clean and orderly city. It is an ideal spot for those who wish to enjoy fine weather or for those who desire

"To husband out life's taper to the close
And keep the flame from wasting by repose."

POST-NUPTIAL EVENT

Mr. and Mrs. Amiel B. Francis, nee Pearl E. Jones, whose marriage took place a few days ago were the honorees of an "at home" on Tuesday evening when friends were bidden to the parental home of the bride, at 115 West 10th street to welcome the young couple's return from San Diego, where the honeymoon was spent.

Yellow and green was the pretty decorative color motif chosen. Chinese lilies and bright green foliage used in massed profusion, with the light of many white tapers shaded in yellow, throwing a soft glow over all, gave an added charm of beauty.

Receiving with the couple were the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Jones, Miss Francis, sister of the groom, Mrs. Albert Foster and Mrs. Morlan of Oakland, sister and childhood friend respectively.

The dark beauty of the bride was advantageously set off by her gown of palest yellow satin and chiffon, carrying an arm bouquet of yellow rosebuds.

Supper was served in the dining-room, where the same color scheme predominated.

Mr. O. E. Jones, father of the bride caught the blossom thrown from the bouquet.

After the holidays, which will be spent here, Mr. Francis will take his bride to Wells, Minnesota, where a cosy home has been arranged.

WEATHER FORECAST—Fair tonight and Thursday; north winds.

FREE FLOWER SHOW

SOCIETY PLANS LOCAL AFFAIR THAT WILL STIMULATE AND EDUCATE COMMUNITY

The Flower Show Committee of fifteen met Tuesday evening at Headquarters, 1111 W. Broadway, and considered the reports of two subcommittees, the Financial and the Schedule of Exhibits committees. Mr. Morris Caruthers, chairman of the first committee, reported the favorable reception of the three gentlemen who waited upon the city Trustees on Monday evening; their request for financial backing for the contemplated Free Flower Show was met with sympathetic interest, and referred to Manager Watson and the chairman of the City Finance committee for further consideration.

It is not known whether a Free Flower Show has ever before been arranged in California. A Free Flower Show means that thousands of persons receive inspiration, stimulation and education; it means that the best of amateur and professional skill and beauty is presented to the public for the public's benefit alone. No organization is benefitted thereby for no money is taken by anyone. A feast for the eye and the mind is presented to everybody absolutely free.

Is not this a splendid advertisement for Glendale? Is it not something to be the pioneer of a movement? What, do you think, will the newspapers and magazines of the United States find to say of the courage, the initiative and patriotism of a municipality and a citizenship who would conceive and back up and carry out such a liberal and original program?

A long discussion ensued upon the report of the committee of Schedule of Exhibits. It is impossible just now to issue a definite statement of all details; but this much is certain, the Schedule of Exhibits and Rules and Conditions governing same, will be published during January, by which time the exact date in April and location of the Flower Show will have been decided. The Pasadena Schedule of Exhibits has been the pattern upon which the local schedule is being based.

There will be about 200 classifications, comprising almost everything in flowers, fruits and vegetables. So let everybody get ready, and grow the finest vegetables, the finest fruits, the best flowers that can be produced. Juveniles under 18 years of age can also enter exhibits in all three classes; juvenile exhibits will be judged separately from the adult exhibits, and the prizes in the juvenile departments will be in the form of cash, books, cups, rare bulbs, etc., according to the individual wishes of the donors.

Within a few days, general instructions will be issued through the Glendale Evening News as to what, when and how to plant. Inquiries at Headquarters, 1111 W. Broadway will be cheerfully answered at all times, by the president, Mrs. Nanno Woods.

The next regular meeting of the Garden Society will be held Thursday evening, January 6, at the Chamber of Commerce rooms, at 8 o' clock. Social half-hour at 7:30. All members, friends, visitors and strangers in Glendale are invited to be present. A very interesting program dealing with up-to-date home gardening and city gardening topics has been arranged.

BUENAS AMIGAS CLUB

In compliment to their husbands and gentlemen friends, members of the Buenas Amigas Club prepared and served a course dinner Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock in the home of Mrs. Alfred Dove, a member residing at 1463 Ivy street. All rooms thrown open for the evening's entertainment were artistically done in scarlet carnations and fern.

A Christmas tree with toy gifts for all and Mr. Hill as Santa Claus, provoked a great deal of fun after the dinner hour and still later a splendid musical program was given. Members and guests numbered Mr. and Mrs. Mattison Marine, Dr. and Mrs. Goodfellow, Mr. and Mrs. John Auchenbauch, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Butt, Mr. and Mrs. Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Unest, Mr. and Mrs. Carl King, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Strong, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. McCulley, all of Los Angeles and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred A. Dove of Glendale, Miss Nell McIntyre, Miss Anna McMahon, Mrs. Abernethy and little daughter Florence, Mr. Robert Brown, Mr. John Coole and Mr. Herbert Tostison.

The United States has produced, in the last season, a record crop of oats. Not wild ones, either.

Glendale vs. Covina

Covina won the second league game of the season last Saturday afternoon on the Covina grounds by the score 26 to 24. The loss of this game was a very great disappointment to the local team. Covina is our old friend who took the championship away from us last year by defeating us with the score 32 to 30 after we had beaten up every other team in the league. We still have a chance for the championship, however. The next game will be played next Saturday with Harvard Military Academy on the Harvard court. If our team plays as well as usual, it it expected that they will win easily. The lineup for the last game was R. Kolts(c), T. Phillips, M. Powers, J. Shea, D. Hagin, O. Williams, M. Francy and W. Renshaw. Bob Kolts and Tom Phillips played especially fine games and are responsible for most of our score. It is hoped we will have better luck at our next game with Harvard.

Comites Celebrates Saturnalia

The students of the Cicero and Virgil classes celebrated the old Roman feast of the Saturnalia, last Friday during the fourth and fifth periods. Tables were set in the Latin room for a regular Roman banquet.

Four girls from the Caesar class waited on the table. Miss Rebecca Gregg acted as the hostess, or as she was called, the "domina convivii." Edith Ewins, Howard McGillis, Dorothy Cloud, Ione Virden and Olin Wilson contributed to the program. The banquet was very lively and the students enjoyed themselves so much that it is hoped the "Comites" will have several meetings this year. The older members of the Comites are looking forward to the meeting when they can initiate the Cicero students.

History Class Enjoys Lecture

Mr. William J. Button gave a very interesting talk last Friday to the American History students. His subject was "Booker T. Washington and the Tuskeegee Institute." Mr. Button is so very enthusiastic about the work of Booker T. Washington, and the work accomplished by the Tuskeege Institute, that he is a very interesting speaker, and the history class consider themselves very fortunate in being able to hear such a lecture.

Sock and Buskin Club

"The Courtship of Miles Standish," was the name of the little play that was cleverly presented to the members of the Sock and Buskin Club last Friday afternoon The characters were Mildred Wight, Martha Sinclair, Jamie Shea and Howard McGillis. The play was such a success that it is thought that it may be given before the assembly some time during the year.

Student Body Meeting

The Junior orchestra, led by Mrs. Gibson, played "Quietude" by Gregg, and "Moonwinks" before the student body last Friday. The orchestra certainly played well considering that this is their first year.

Robert Kolts made some announcements about basketball and Shea, Francy, Phillips, Powers, Hogin and Williams were called on for speeches.

The speaker announced that an election for yell leader would be held after the holidays. Harry Glazier, Fred Dodge, Lawrence Davis and Berna Martin were asked to demonstrate their leading ability, by leading the school in a couple of yells each. Fred Dodge certainly showed up, but then, we always did say that Fred knew how to lead.

ATTEMPTED BURGLARY

Report was made to the police Tuesday that an attempt had been made to burglarize the home of Mr. T. J. Rosenberger, 147 S. Brand. The police made a class examination of the premises and came to the conclusion that the house had been entered by burglars but that they had been frightened away. Examination of the door showed that the lock had been pried off by means of some tool. No further light could be found on the subject.

UNITED STATES OVERSEAS POLICY

With the exception of a very small majority the people of the United States appear to be in favor of a policy and practice of preparedness on the part of this country. The striking lessons of the war in Europe which have gone to show that even with every advantage in the way of money a country cannot build up a great army to meet forces already prepared without enormous expense and after suffering losses that need not have been endured, have awakened this land to a sense of its own need for a larger army and a larger navy.

These two items, however, are not all that is needed. There is equal need for an overseas policy. Under economic conditions today a nation's interests and rights can never be protected by arms alone. In the last resort arms are not for the defense, properly speaking of a country but of a policy. If arms are to be effective the people of this country and the world at large, as well as the theoretically prospective enemy must know behind what policy the army and navy stand.

Failing this the country would have to fight first and find out afterward for what it was fighting. That is not the best way to protect American interests. Advocates of preparedness in the United States seem to imply that the American policy in no way touches the rest of the world and that American military force can have but one object—to repel predatory attacks upon American territory. Those advocates seem to think that all that is necessary is to ask the foreigner politely to keep out. In that case they cannot see the use of an overseas policy.

It might be well to remember that the United States has had several wars since it became an independent State and that it has been threatened with several more. Not one of these wars was for the defense of its own territory, properly speaking. All arose out of a conflict of policy over American rights at sea, the Monroe doctrine and other subjects of similar nature.

What is needed is a formulation of policy with reference to South America, sea law, Japan and the open door in China, and the support of some international code for the prevention of crude aggression by any nation. This country needs to have a policy linking armament with economic pressure, a recognition of the fact that considerable progress has been made in the formation of the world state.

Recognition of this world state might well be the beginning of the world organization of our common resources—social, economical, political—for the purpose of dealing with a recalcitrant member of international society by other than purely military means. This country and the world need a starting point at which international law might begin to be a reality, a code that is not merely expressing the general interest but embodying means for enforcing respect for it.

The United States has a marvelously strong position in the world at the present moment. This country is the creditor of the nations. The balance of trade is in her hands. She is the banker of the world. The gold of other lands has filled her vaults. She is in some senses the great food provider, also, and she has been a prominent factor in the course of the war.

At any future crisis this country should be in a position to say to recalcitrant nations: "Do what you are advised and refrain from doing what you are advised not to do or this country on which you depend for so much of your necessities will close its ports to your ships and your vessels can neither enter nor leave. We will tie up your money which is in our banks. You will get neither cotton nor wool from us. Coal and metals you cannot obtain here, whatever your need. If you invade other countries and devastate them we will consider the advisability of reimbursing those lands with what money of yours we have." These would be powerful arguments for the keeping of international peace.

FAILURE OF GALLIPOLI CAMPAIGN

It is a complete exemplification of the haphazard manner in which much of the Allies' campaign has been conducted to read that the British troops have been withdrawn from their advanced positions on the Gallipoli peninsula. These troops, some of the best colonial units in the war, have been enduring an absolute hell on that barren, sandy stretch of land for months past. Even water had to be brought to them from the ships and the strong positions from which the Turks fought made it next to impossible to break through with a force of 100,000 men.

Little wonder that the British public and parliament are asking what was meant by sending an inadequate force to attempt one of the most difficult tasks of the war. "To muddle through" long ago became an accepted policy of the incapables of the war office and the cabinet of Britain. All the same, even should the Allies win the war, what was the use of sacrificing those 99,000 men, whose deaths and wounding are reported as the price paid for a futile campaign.

It is difficult to understand what policy actuated the British in their campaign against Constantinople. If they wanted to take that city they must have known that a force of 100,000 men was not sufficient to send against the whole Turkish army, which was immediately concentrated at the capital.

It is easy to understand that now that the policy of the campaign is being dictated by a general strategy board made up of the leading army men of all the allied nations, a different kind of campaign is to be carried out. Had that course been followed from the beginning how many of those useful and manly lives that were recklessly thrown away on the Gallipoli peninsula would have been spared.

It is pitiable to think of the sacrifice of life on that spot. The full story of the horrors of the Gallipoli campaign will never be written until the war is over; but what has leaked out about it already and what is likely to leak out still more indicat that what Sherman said of war had a complete exemplification on the Turkish peninsula.

THE CHRISTMAS TIME

By Samuel Parker

The impression is fast spreading that in the past great injury has come to children by a method of teaching, direct or indirect, under which the tender mind was filled with falsehood, especially at the Christmas time, when the false and supernatural was emphasized by parading "Santa Claus," with mythical and imaginery incidentals, from all of which the child mind would forcefully recoil later on.

The holiest thing, outside of Heaven, is the faith of a little child, and he is guilty of great wrong who, at any time, decieves or abuses it. The Master Himself canonized this simple pure faith by declaring to the formalists of his time, "Except ye be converted, and become as a little child, ye shall in no wise enter into the kingdom." He further said in protection of the trusting faith of childhood, "Woe unto him that shall offend any of these little ones. It were better for such an one that a millstone be hung about his neck, and he be buried in the depths of the sea." Now, whosoever, at any time, teaches a child anything that later on has to be declared was a falsehood, or with expectation that the child when older will discover to be false, offends these little ones, in the very sense, and on the very line, of which the Savior was speaking, and invites and incurs the millstone penalty, unless it is atoned for by penitence as a precedence to pardon.

I recently asked a young lady what her impressions were when she discovered "Santa Claus" to be a myth, and all that she had been told respecting him was false. Her prompt reply was, "I felt aggrieved and oppressed with a sense of loss, and then indignant, that my parents and friends who professed to love me so dearly, should deceive me thus, and the effect of that rude undeceiving has followed me into my adult years. I never since have had that reverence for Christianity and sacred things that would have been mine, but for that unfortunate deception."

Associated for many years with a dear friend who had charge of the primary department in one of the largest churches in Chicago, whose family of 150 "little tots" never lacked for joyous and proper Christmas entertainment, with Christ as the central thought, and "Santa Claus" never mentioned, writing along this line of thought said:—

"If it is a day of special rejoicing for a Savior born, is it appropriate on the Christmas Sunday to devote the time to, and fill the children's minds with arrangements and announcements of a Santa Claus entertaiment and further deepen the impression by the week-day exhibition?

"The child, depending on sense rather than reason, accepts the visible before the invisible, the material before the spiritual and with its confiding nature gives implicit belief to that which is presented by those whom it trusts. The injury arising from the inevitable awakening when deceived, will leave an ineffaceable scar upon the heart, for that moment of distrust of those whom it loves, and the sense of bewilderment for previous certainty ,will always be remembered by the child.

"One of the many wrongs to childhood is the almost universal habit of giving fictitious answers to children's questions. A friend, speaking of its baneful influence, said a boy of six in her Sunday school class to whom she was telling the story of Jesus, remarked emphatically, 'You needn't tell me! For the baby didn't come from heaven, there isn't any Santa Claus, and I don't believe there ever was a Jesus.' Last year a little neighbor child came in great distress to her mother, exclaiming, 'Mama, Willie says there is no Santa Claus, but I told him there is, for you said so, and it's true, isn't it?' The mother, after a moment's hesitation admitted, 'Well, Willie is right. I supposed you would find it out some time.' The grieved child falteringly asked, 'Is there a Jesus, Mama?'

"It seems incredulous that intelligent people should cling so tenaciously to old customs, and sacrifice this golden opportunity of first impressions, by bringing forward the barbarian myth when the theme is the birth of a spiritual Savior. Even if the wondrous story is also told, which will make the lasting impression? There can be but one result. The child will ever see the image of the hoary old man in red, while the words will be lost in the excitement."

No war is intended herein on "Santa Claus" as a wordly representative. He belongs with "Bacchus" and "wassail and revelry" are his antecedents. But with pertinacity of his votaries, and cowardice of Christians, he has pressed into the sacred precincts, until in many cases he has robbed the Savior of the right to celebrate his own birthday with his own people, while fun, frolic and falsehood hold all place on church programs. If the worldly want to thus celebrate the Christmas season, let them do so, but in the name of the Master, keep him out of the church.

The sweet spirit of love, kindness, gentleness and love for children came into the world with the Christ, and trine, "Thou shalt love the Lord, thy God, with all thy heart. And thy neighbor as thyself." And yet from high worldly sources you are besought to contribute to "Santa Claus". Managed sources, as if that were the only avenue for helping the needy, and the heathen myth, the author of Charity, Love, and benevolent action. To be charitable is Christlike, but in every way of teaching it, we should be honest with the child.

Some of the presidential booms that are said to spring up like mushrooms probably are toadstools.

Pressure is said to be being brought to bear on Villa to make him quit. "Pressure" is a new name for shooting up an army.

LEONE BRICE CELEBRATES SEASON WITH APPROPRIATE PROSE AND VERSE

"Ring the bells and raise the strain,
Hang up garlands everywhere,
Bid the tapers twinkle fair,
Feast and frolic—then we go
Back to the same old lives again."

The rapid and ever-onward flight of time has almost winged away another year, but the thought of the happy Christmastide buries for a time all vain regrets and sweeps away sad introspective thoughts of dead days and fallen leaves. Our hearts seem so inspired with love and gladness that we would fain join in with the more youthful and revel once more in the innocent sports of childhood.

Why do we ever grow old, or allow ourselves to become so selfishly wrapped up with our own troubles that we cannot he'p to spread sunshine in the hearts of others? Why should we not lay aside the old life with all of its cares and give vent to joy and gladness upon the blessed Christmas morn—the anniversary of the birth of Christ, the Great Redeemer, and only salvation of a sinful world?

Then let us clap our hands and rejoice that our Redeemer liveth. Let us do away with long faces and long prayers; go out upon the highways and byways giving raiment to clothe the body and food to the hungry—not spiritual food. for that is too often given without anything else and is rather light to subsist upon. Even though we have but a "widow's mite" to give, we can gladden some little heart that nestles beneath a ragged coat, or bring a smile to the pitiful lips of some little one by a cheap gift in the way of book or toy. Kind and charitable deeds done in "His Name" are as refreshing to our souls as the dews of heaven to the withering flowers.

Let us strive to cast the shadows behind us and rejoice in that we are making others happy. Those who may be troubled in spirit and whose hearts have been sorely tried, and upon whom perhaps this Christmas morn dawneth sadly, we point to that star of hope which arose nineteen hundred and fifteen years ago and which lighted and directed the way of the wise men to the Babe in Bethlehem.

May this star shine forth in the life's sky of all tired and weary hearts and chase from their horizon every darkening cloud. May the brilliant rays pierce their souls and draw them to the Lamb of God that taketh away all sorrow and giveth peace to every heart.

This is the month and this the happy morn
Wherein the Son of Heaven's eternal King,
Of wedded maid and virgin mother born,
Our great redemption from above did bring,
Even as the holy sages all did sing,
That He our deadly forfeits should release
And from His Father win perpetual peace.

LEONE BRICE

A Chicago department store is said to have boycotted the superlative in all its advertisements. "Finest," "cheapest," "rarest" and, in fact, all words ending in "est" are prohibited. Preferably the positive degree is used, and occasionally the comparative degree is tolerated, but the superlative never. As a reaction against the absurdly excessive claims of many advertisements this decision is explicable. Would that by some sudden induement of good sense, perspective and restraint, governed by the critical faculty, this rule might work in the realm of contemporary oratory. Few are the speakers whose estimates of men and of policies are not excessively favorable or unfavorable when framed and uttered before an audience.

A Philadelphia collector has 277 distinct editions of De Foe's "Robinson Crusoe" in English, and copies of the same story in th'rty-five other tongues. Is there another "juvenile" classic that has had equally frequent translation and publication in complete or condensed form? We say "juvenile" though well aware that many a man vies with his son in liking the story. Nor will such zest for the masterpiece be likely to wane as the years come and go, especially as the conditions and experiences it describes become more difficult to reproduce in personal adventure, owing to the charting of the high seas and the annexation of islands for military and commercial purposes.

TAKE OFF FRESH AIR CARS

The Chicago traction lines, after a couple of weeks' experimentation with "fresh air cars" have taken them all off. Even Chicago citizens balked at riding in elevated trains with the windows all open. Of course, they love cold weather. But the first real nor'wester sweeping across the prairie drove then all to the shelter of the air-tight cars.

It was the health commissioner who started the fresh air car business. He professes to be satisfied with the trial, because, though it failed to lure the passengers permanently into the open air, it "stirred up opinion in favor of fresh air and encouraged citizens to sleep out of doors."

If it really persuaded people to sleep out of doors in a Windy City winter, the health commissioner has triumphed indeed.

As a matter of fact, the fresh air propaganda never flourishes in the winter time. The ordinary person can't help getting about all the fresh air he can use profitably, unless he seals his house hermetically with double windows. Cold air, being so much heavier than the warm air of a heated house or office, has a way of intruding in spite of efforts to bar it, as many a poor family knows too well. It is only the hotel guests and flat-dwellers and the over-rich householders that run much risk of asphyxiation.

Without depreciating the value of cold fresh air in the least, we may recognize that the problem of an average American who doesn't reside in the South'and in the winter always has been, and still is, merely to keep warm.

The legitimate stage seems to be suffering from too much reelism.

Until the beginning of this war nobody realized that sugar in a ship's hold was likely either to explode or to burst into flame. Sugar never used to act that way.

This year the Crane Company of Chicago will distribute $700,000 among its employees as a Christmas remembrance. Santa Claus must be a silent member of the firm.

FOR GLENDALE FLOAT

The Representatives of the City Trustees, the Chamber of Commerce and the Glendale Garden Society, ask the citizens of Glendale for pledges of Cecil Bruner roses particularly, and other pink roses and blossoms with smilax, fern fronds and asparagus fern, to be used in the making of the floral floats, which Glendale is sending to the Pasadena Tournament of Roses on January 1st. Names and addresses of those willing to contribute may be sent in to any of the organizations mentioned, and with thanks.

Mrs. McNutt presided at the well attended meeting, opening with an address by Miss Britton, a member of the Children's Department in the Los Angeles library, who gave a most interesting and inspiring outline of literature for children, beginning with reading aloud in the home, lullabys, poetry, picture-books, Bible stories, fairy stories, etc. Then followed a talk by our own librarian, Mrs. Danford, on general conditions of our library, the work with the children, expressing the desire to reach and be near each child in Glendale.

CHRISTMAS ENTERTAINMENT

The West Glendale Methodist church will give its Christmas entertainment tomorrow (Thursday) evening at 7:30 o'clock. The committee in charge have given much care in preparing the program of music and recitations. Candy and nuts will be prepared in nice boxes for the children and a cute Santa Claus will be there with a Christmas tree.

Each class in the Sunday school will bring a donation for the needy. These things will go to help any in the community, then to the Hollywood school for Mexican girls, and to the city mission. The table offering as a Christmas gift to the church last Sunday, the treasurer announced, was $63.35 in cash. This will start the church with small cash balances in all its treasuries of the various departments of the work. We hold no bazaars, but depend upon free will offerings. The church will have a merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

ORANGE THIEVES AT WORK

Complaint was made to the police Tuesday that attempts had been made recently to enter the premises at 208 Lomita, corner of Belmont. It is supposed that the thieves were after oranges. Mrs. Stokes, the proprietor of the place called for the chief and his men and with their assistance made a thorough examination of the grounds. Many impressions of feet were found; but as many of them were those of people belonging to the household, nothing could be made of the affair. It was also thought that a wagon might have been used in the supposed thefts but among the many wagon tracks on the street none showed up as likely to have been in connection with the supposed robberies.

HIGH SCHOOL ART EXHIBIT

One of the most interesting and attractive exhibits of art work ever completed by the Art department of the High School will be on view in the Households Art building, Room 133, second floor of the school. The exhibit covers the work of one semester and includes flower decoration in colors, illuminated Christmas cards, block prints, beaded scarves, with designs printed in colors from the block prints, also a display of concrete pottery tiles. The exhibit will be open from 9 a. m. to 1:30 p. m., Wednesday and Thursday of this week; and throughout the following week between 2 and 4 p. m., from Monday to Friday.

SENIOR CLASS BANQUET

Sixteen Senior class girls entertained the basketball boys of the Senior class, Monday night, at the home of Grace Beach, a member of the Senior class. The Senior girls present were: Lola East, Vera Baird, Grace Shropshire, Rachel McClure, Grace Beach, Mary Jane Evans, Ruth Wilson, Zelina Burton, Carol Willisford, Rebecca Gregg, Caroline Wattling. The basketball boys were: Will Renshaw, William Leonard, Robert Kolts, Howard Stickney, Mark Francy, Jamie Shea, I. S. Brown, Hansen Garrett, Lisle Johnson, J. T. Beach, Richard Burke, Tom Phillips. A very pleasant banquet was enjoyed, followed by music, games and dancing. The rooms and table were tastefully decorated with poinsettia and holly. After the banquet and other entertainment the whole party adjourned to the Palace Grand Theater, where they enjoyed the wonderful presentation of "The Galley Slave," by Theda Bara.

EXCITING CAT HUNT

Informed that a wild cat was terrifying the neighborhood of Broadway and Verdugo road, Chief of Police Herald and Patrolman Hollenbeck started out armed to the teeth, this morning, to get the animal. The call for police aid was sent in by W. H. Ward of E. Broadway and Verdugo road, who telephoned that a wild cat had taken refuge under his house and that it was impossible to dislodge him. Visions of a fine wildcat skin flitted through the officers' minds as they rushed to the scene. Wailings and wild moanings issued from beneath the house, where, when Patrolman Hollenbeck crawled, he found a miserable tame pussy. The unfortunate creature had been caught in a trap and had been shrieking and moaning for 24 hours in that cruel position. Patrolman Hollenbeck put the suffering animal out of its misery.

CHRISTMAS AT M. E. CHURCH

The Methodist Sunday school will hold Christmas exercises at the church, commencing at 7:30 Thursday evening. A suitable program will be rendered. The various classes have planned to distribute presents the following day.

If you have an article that is of good value and you wish to sell it, advertise it.

Nearly 9,000,000 fewer persons were carried by the New York street railways in the last fiscal year reported than in the previous year. Putting it properly, the people of New York who patronize these conveyances took 9,000,000 fewer rides than in the previous year. No explanation is attempted by the public service commission, which gives out the statistics, and perhaps none is possible. All that the carrying corporations have to say in the premises, and this they say regretfully, of course, is that they fell 9,000,000 short of the number of nickels they should have had if the business reported for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1915, had been equal to that ending June 30, 1914. It would be exceedingly interesting to learn, if it could be learned, where all these nickels went, assuming, as we must, that nickels invariably go somewhere.

The supervisors have lately passed a law that no culvert shall be built in front of one's place, to give them entrance on to the street, but instead an open waterway shall be erected. Several residents on School St. have just finished putting in culverts, but these will have to be torn out, and an open waterway put in. So let everyone now provide for an open waterway, instead of putting in a culvert. By so doing you will prevent doing a lot of unnecessary work.

ORDINANCE NO. 279

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF GLENDALE CALLING A SPECIAL ELECTION TO BE HELD IN THE CITY OF GLENDALE ON THE 11TH DAY OF JANUARY, 1916, AND SUBMITTING TO THE QUALIFIED VOTERS OF THE SAID CITY THE PROPOSITIONS OF INCURRING INDEBTEDNESS FOR THE ACQUISITION AND CONSTRUCTION OF CERTAIN MUNICIPAL IMPROVEMENTS, PROVIDING FOR THE ISSUANCE OF BONDS THEREFOR, SUBDIVIDING THE CITY INTO ELECTION PRECINCTS, DESIGNATING THE POLLING PLACES AND APPOINTING ELECTION OFFICERS FOR SAID ELECTION.

WHEREAS, the Board of Trustees of the City of Glendale at its regular meeting held on the 21st day of October, 1915, by a vote of more than two-thirds of all its members duly passed and adopted a resolution determining:

That the public interest and necessity demand the acquisition and construction by the City of Glendale of a certain municipal improvement, to-wit:

The building and constructing of dikes, dams, banks, levies, curbs, culverts, gutters, piles, pavement, pillars and walls for the protection of the property of said city from overflow by the Verdugo Canyon wash and Sycamore Canyon wash in said city; the acquisition of necessary easements and rights of way over which to construct and carry out said improvements and do and perform all things necessary to improve the banks and beds of said washes in such a way and manner as will protect the property in said city from overflow and destruction therefrom by storm and surface water.

That the estimated cost of said municipal improvement is Seventy Thousand ($70,000.00) Dollars, and is and will be too great to be paid out of the ordinary annual income and revenue of the municipality. Said improvement would require an expenditure greater than the amount allowed for the same by the annual tax levy; and whereas said resolution was duly signed and approved by the President of the Board of Trustees of the said city on the 21st day of October, 1915, and was attested and certified to by the City Clerk and was duly published on the 22nd day of October, 1915, in the Glendale Evening News, a daily newspaper printed, published and circulated in the City of Glendale:

That a special election be held and the same is hereby called to be held in the City of Glendale on the 11th day of January, 1916, for the purpose of submitting to the qualified voters of said city the propositions of incurring indebtedness and issuing bonds of said city in the amount and as hereinafter set forth and for the purposes set forth in said resolutions hereinbefore referred to and as hereinafter stated.

SECTION 2. That the objects and purposes for which said indebtedness is proposed to be incurred and bonds issued therefor, are as follows, to-wit:

FIRST PROPOSITION.—The acquisition by the City of Glendale of a certain municipal improvement and utility, to-wit: Fire-fighting apparatus and equipment, including an automobile pumping engine, hose and other fire-fighting equipment.

SECOND PROPOSITION.—The acquisition and construction by the City of Glendale of a certain municipal improvement, to-wit: The building and construction of dikes, dams, banks, levies, curbs, culverts, gutters, piles, pavement, pillars and walls for the protection of the property of said city from overflow by the Verdugo Canyon wash and Sycamore Canyon wash in said city; the acquisition of necessary easements and rights of way over which to construct and carry out said improvements and do and perform all things necessary to improve the banks and beds of said washes in such a way and manner as will protect the property in said city from overflow and destruction therefrom by storm and surface water.

SECTION 3. The motor seems like a thing of life, abounding in vitality —trigger swift in the gliding get-away, and splendidly free from the slightest jerk, or jump, or jolt

A reflection of this is the steadiness of the car—that freedom from trembling and vibration in the tonneau which means so much in ease and comfort

The motor is 30-35 horsepower
